

The image is a black and white line drawing of a map. It features a complex network of thin lines representing property boundaries, streets, and possibly utility lines. A prominent feature is a large, irregularly shaped area outlined with a thick black line. This area is labeled 'High Historical Use Area I' in a grey box at the top left. Another label, 'Buffer Zone', is in a grey box at the top right, with two thick black lines pointing towards the boundary of the 'High Historical Use Area I'. The map also shows several small, shaded rectangular areas, possibly representing buildings or specific sites of interest. The overall layout is a detailed site plan or historical map.
